Atlantic-Gulf Special Road and Bridge District Voted Last Tuesday, Includes Lower Part of Osceola County on Road

An election held pursuant to an act of the recent session of the Florida Legislature, where in the Atlantic-Gulf special Road and Bridge district was provided for, the effect of the law to become operative when two-thirds majority of the freeholders in the territory had approved the formation of such district and the issuance of bonds in the sum of one million dollars in bonds for the construction of roads and bridges in the new district, the vote recorded Tuesday in the voting precincts included in the entire district were two hundred and twenty-one for the district and bonds and twenty-eight against the formation of the district.

This gives the Atlantic-Gulf Special Road and Bridge District a majority of about eight to one in favor of the building of the road from Vero Beach through the newly formed Indian River county and Osceola county to join other hard roads in Polk or DeSoto counties, thus giving another cross state paved road.

The call for the election was published in both counties that would be effected by the location of the district, that for Osceola county being published in the St. Cloud Tribune.

There were but few voters in the parts of Osceola county to be included in the district and the majority of those voters opposed the road district and bond issue.

The heavy vote in Indian River county (formed out of St. Lucie county by the recent legislature) were almost unanimous in their endorsement of the proposed road and bridge district.

It is reported that only 14 votes were cast in Osceola county and 13 were in opposition to the new district.

It is also reported that the opposition came from the fact that practically the entire territory to be taken in from Osceola county is owned by a big land company who opposed the new road, but according to the vote taken by authority of the legislature the new district has been legally approved, but may result in litigation from the aforesaid big land company.

Trustees for the new district were also named in the election.

The people who are interested in the development of the southern part of Osceola county will watch with great interest any move that any big land company may make to contest the act of the Legislature and the final approval by the people of the district effected in providing this new road and bridge district.

The district includes the following lands, according to the call for the special election to approve the action of the legislature:

Be It Resolved, That the Board of Bond Trustees of Atlantic-Gulf Special Road and Bridge District of the State of Florida, does hereby find, declare and determine that bonds to the amount of One Million Dollars are required for the purpose of building and constructing a road as provided for in the Act creating the said District, to be known as Vero Beach-Tampa Highway, and which shall follow as nearly as is practicable the following courses and distances, to-wit:

Beginning at the Northwest corner of the Southwest quarter of Section 4, Township 33 South, Range 30 East, thence running West to Northwest corner of the Southwest quarter of Section 4, Township 33 South, Range 30 East, thence Northwest through Teehee to Daughtery crossing, near the South end of Lake Kissimmee, also the county line of Polk County, together with all necessary cuttings and bridges, and to acquire and pay for rights of way and other property necessary to be acquired in the construction of said road and to pay the expenses incident to such work, with in said Atlantic-Gulf Special Road and Bridge District of the State of Florida, the boundaries of which and the territory included in, which are as follows, to-wit:

ST. CLOUD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HEARS REPORT ON ROAD PROJECTS

Last Wednesday at the regular weekly meeting held on tenth street in Chamber of Commerce room many matters of interest were discussed but one of the most interesting subject of the meeting was the condition of the St. Cloud-Melbourne road. Mr. John P. Bailey, one of the local realtors stated that he had just returned from a trip to Miami and he was surprised to find the St. Cloud-Melbourne road in such a good condition. Mr. Bailey's report on road was that he considered this road safe for any or all who might choose to cross it and the coming tourists need not be afraid of the cross state highway by the way of Kissimmee-St. Cloud and Melbourne.

President Wm. Landis, who presided at the meeting reported that Vice President Moore had left today for an extended trip to Arkansas but because so many are taking vacations was no reason for the attendance of the meetings to grow small. Mr. Bailey then stated that a membership drive should be put on at this time but no action was taken.

J. C. Gallatin made a short talk about the trip he and the city commissioners had recently made on the West Coast going as far as Sarasota. The purpose of the trip was to investigate the machinery so as to know what to purchase for the city.

L. E. Diefendorf, scout master of the local troop, made a short talk on securing a man for this purpose as his time was taken and plans will be taken toward this matter at once. Mr. Diefendorf explained that a scout master in a city was one of the greatest assets, a city could have as the boys of today are the men of tomorrow.

The meeting adjourned until next Wednesday.

Outlaw announced this week that bids will be open from the first of September for the sewer and drainage system, also for the purchasing of the new dredging machine and other needed improvements for the city. Last week Mayor G. C. Outlaw, Commissioner J. J. Johnston and Electrician Engineer J. C. Gallatin all motored down the west coast as far as Sarasota investigating the different kinds of machinery and to find out what kind to secure for the city need.

Last Saturday afternoon Dr. Sudo a Japanese lady, who has been a resident of St. Cloud for the past several years, had the misfortune of falling out of a car while turning the corner of New York Ave. and Eleventh street and was seriously injured. Last Sunday the Gospel team of the Methodist Church motored to Tall. Fla. and held the preaching at that church. Several laymen and local preachers spoke and the music was furnished by Miss Nina Lee Landis.

WORKMEN ON BAPTIST CHURCH REACH FLOOR OF BALCONY IN CONSTRUCTION THIS WEEK

Workmen on the new addition to the Baptist church, Eleventh street and Massachusetts Avenue, have this week reached the point in construction work that required the placing of timbers for the floor of the balcony, which will make the second story over the new class rooms that have been provided for. Heavy timbers for the balcony floor have been placed in position this week. The stone work has reached the height of the first floor, and will continue to full height of the original building, which will require the removal of the stained glass windows from the old main end facing east to the new walls of the addition, which is on the curb line of Massachusetts Avenue.

The additional Sunday-school class rooms will be a big lower than the floor of the original church, which was one big auditorium, and will be divided off so that each class may pursue their studies without interfering with the other classes. The balcony for the main auditorium will be immediately above this series of class rooms and will add many new pews to the seating capacity of the main auditorium, thus giving the Baptist congregation additional room that has been so much needed for the past two or three years.

The Baptist congregation, since Rev. R. Atchison has been pastor, has grown to such proportions that for their Sunday services they had to use in addition to the church the G. A. R. auditorium for both Sunday school and preaching services. This new addition will enable the congregation for a short time to be housed in their own edifice, much to the satisfaction of the members of the church.

Rev. R. Atchison has been privileged to have established what is probably the largest Sunday school class in Osceola county, this being one of the features of the Sunday morning services of the church, which as stated has been using the G. A. R. Hall.

93rd BIRTHDAY

On Tuesday, August 4 the neighbors of Mr. Preston Raynor called to congratulate him on living to this advanced age and being as active as he. About 35 years ago, while repairing his flag staff he fell nearly 20 feet, therefore has not been quite as active since, but helps cultivate his garden and walks to post office occasionally. Mrs. Raynor had prepared for the reception and she is known as a very excellent cook, and a punch bowl had delicious fruit juice.

Last year Mr. Raynor built on an enclosed porch the length of his cottage while has a door opening on Minnesota Avenue, with windows each side. On the south side there are a half dozen screened windows which look on the wealth of bloom all the year round in the flower garden, on plant, shrub and tree, while in rear are bananas and some stately, gracefully waving bamboos. From the garden a friend gathered a basket or more of the scarlet and pink hibiscus, vines and some other plants and placed them over windows, doors, piazzas and on walls until the room was a bower of beauty—looked ready for a wedding. One said, Mr. Raynor showed some news paper clippings stating the longevity of many of his relatives. At this point Mr. Raynor was called upon for "speech," and said practically as follows: "When 20 years old my health seemed failing so I started for Florida. There were no boats stopping on East coast—had to take a sloop for Key West and after stopping there a few weeks went to Pensacola. This was about 1858 and in this city were many slaves who had the chance out of cotton season to go to cities and work—they paid their owners $12.00 per month and reserved any extra earning—there were overseers to look after them. "Many were handsome blue eyed girls with perfectly white skins—they did laundry work. "A white negro barber" on one of the Mississippi boats had his freedom papers so that he did not need to pay the $12.00 per month, but did not dare land unless he was sure of getting thru to Canada at once—but he earned big money and was just waiting his chance. The barber told me that his mother was nearly white and a house servant of Jeff Davis and that she told him that Jeff Davis was his father. He seemed a nice bright fellow. One negro was given 20 lashes, each day, for blood—he had charged money for delivering some goods. I was in Texas and on the Mississippi steam boats and in all the state along that river then went from my uncle who built all the big ironing buildings in Juliet, Ill. to Philadelphia, but soon returned to Juliet and later home over first Niagara bridge when 200 passengers left the train to cross the bridge) they to Albany, and New York City—and home as miles east on Lake Island. I earned my money in a bank. My health improved after 23 weeks."

Last Sunday the Gospel team of the Methodist Church motored to Tall. Fla. and held the preaching at that church. Several laymen and local preachers spoke and the music was furnished by Miss Nina Lee Landis.

Mr. John Haner and family spent last Sunday in Melbourne enjoying home Sunday night.

WOULD NULLIFY FLORIDA LAW

JACKSONVILLE, July 24.—Col. Peter O. Knight, of Tampa, one of Florida's most widely known attorneys and a member of the board of directors of the Florida development board, is virtually ordering his private business affairs in order to organize a fight against what he believes is a concerted attempt to nullify the effect of Florida's amendment against the levying of state inheritance tax.

The movement, led by Chairman Green of the ways and means committee of the lower house of congress, if successful would result according to Col. Knight, in amendment of the federal inheritance tax law in such a manner that Florida would be forced to levy a state inheritance tax.

The Plan

"In the payment of federal inheritance taxes the United States government now allows an estate a deduction of 25 per cent of the amount due for state inheritance taxes," says Col. Knight in a statement prepared for the development board, "but a discriminatory effect is being made now by various states to have the federal inheritance tax amended, so that there will be a deduction in the payment of federal inheritance taxes of the entire amount paid for state inheritance taxes, the purpose of which is to force the state of Florida to levy an inheritance tax so that this state would get the benefit of the payment of such taxes; whereas, otherwise it would not do so.

"The various chambers of commerce organizations, and business interests generally ought to let our delegation in congress know how we feel about this. We are opposed to a federal inheritance tax in toto, and the United States government has no moral right to force the people of Florida to levy state inheritance tax against the will of the people of the state."

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE

1. You shall send your farm produce for cash where you can get the best price for it.
2. You shall believe in us, and test because we do not know you personally.
3. You shall send your money to us in advance, so we can buy the goods from the factory with your money, you may have to wait a few weeks, but that is our business method.
4. You shall get help from your nearest city or village to build good roads, so you may easily hand our goods from the depot but do not ask help from us—we don't help to build good roads.
5. You may buy church bells and other miscellanea from us, and send the money in advance—that's our rule.
6. You shall get all the help you can from the business men in your neighborhood; although we may have more profit you than the grocer, it is against our rules to give to your churches.
7. You shall convert your neighbors also to your faith in us, for we have room for more money.
8. You shall look at the pretty pictures in our catalog as often as you can, so to strengthen your desire for things you do not need, but which you may order with other goods to save freight. Send us all your ready cash so that you may not have any left to buy necessities from your town dealers.
9. You shall believe in us rather than your home business men, for we want your trade. We get to be unlikable in your respect. Don't be fooled.
10. You shall call on the business people in your own vicinity for help and credit if you meet with hard luck or sickness. It's your money we want; we don't know you unless your order are accompanied by cash.—The Prairie Lumberman.

FORD SAYS BAL- LOON TIRES BEST

One of the most interesting illustrations of the popularity of balloon tires is revealed in figures just given out by the Ford Motor Company showing how Ford car owners have accepted these tires.

About the middle of February the company announced that it would provide balloon tires as optional equipment on all new Ford cars at small additional cost and would also provide balloon tire wheels for owners who wished to change over to the new equipment.

Simultaneously dealers were requested to furnish estimates as to the number of new cars they would require with balloon equipment. Under these estimates 20 per cent of the cars produced during the first month were equipped with balloons.

Requirements for this kind of equipment immediately began to increase and in May more than 60 per cent of the new car production was equipped with balloon tires with every indication that the per centage for June would be even higher.

In connection with the use of balloon tires the company has checked thoroughly into the matter of correct inflation and recommends the following table for the guidance of Ford car owners:

Coupe	24 lbs.	24 lbs.
Runabout	24 lbs.	24 lbs.
Touring Car	24 lbs.	27 lbs.
Tucker Sedan	24 lbs.	30 lbs.
Parade Sedan	24 lbs.	30 lbs.

It is explained that in order to secure the maximum service and comfort from balloon tires it is essential that the foregoing table of tire pressures be rigidly followed. Under inflation results in rapid wear of the tread and also tends to break down the walls of the tire. If over inflated, the cushioning effect of the tires is lost and the owner of the car does not enjoy the easy riding qualities which come from the use of properly inflated balloon tires.

SCOTT WINS BATTLE TO ESCAPE GALLOWS; IS DECLARED INSANE

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Reuben Scott recently won his fight to escape the gallows.

A jury in the court of Superior Judge Joseph H. Davis, found him insane.

The jury which took seven ballots reached its verdict after deliberating three hours and forty minutes. Its first ballot was reported to have been given to the jury in a hurry and thereafter the jury gradually swung to the insanity verdict.

Scott immediately was committed to the Chicago asylum.

Watches Jury Intently

Scott sat intently in his chair while the jury took the vote. He turned eagerly to the foreman when he announced to the court that a verdict was ready and as the bailiff passed the verdict to the clerk, Scott's eyes followed the slip of paper that might mean life or death.

When the verdict was read Scott's mouth twitched nervously and he shifted his position in the chair. He sat motionlessly at the side of his attorneys while the court entered the judgment on the verdict and then was hurried out of the room as the bailiff adjourned the session.

Mrs. Catherine Scott, the young wife of the prisoner, leaned forward in an attitude of prayer after the verdict was read. Scott's mother, at his side, wept and embraced Scott's wife while Thomas Scott, his aged and crippled father, received the verdict without show of emotion.

Still Faces Threat

Scott, while going to the asylum as insane, still faces death on the gallows should he ever be found to have regained his sanity.

Sallie's Temptations

Copyright, 1924, by Gladys Baker

Ellie Tempt, Sallie

"No, one will ever know the silent suffering of those poor few weeks. I would wake from unhappy dreams and stare motionless into the night. One morning I looked into the mirror and drew back for my whole face was pale and drawn and my eyes were like ashes, lusterless and gray."

"During those days, I started away from the plant. It was my desire to bring more gladness into those people's meager lives but now that my own chance of happiness had definitely fled, I was unable to put my joylessness into the work. And then, on the afternoon of a day that had been particularly sad, Ellie arrived."

"Sallie, I've come for you to go ahead," she announced.

"That's sweet of you, Sport, but I can't this time."

"And why not? I hope you are not going to spend your summer fustling with those smelly kids at your father's plant. You're too young, Sallie, besides no one should take an interest in the poor until after they're seventy-five."

"But, Ellie, you don't understand," I replied.

"I like my work and anyway, I wouldn't enjoy a trip to Europe just now."

"Why? Because Christie Wright is going to marry Anne?" then she hurried up to answer to my look of surprise. "Oh, it's all over the state by now. She shouted it from the house tops the minutes he slipped her the ring. Depend on Anne. Anyhow, that's all the more reason why you should chuck the whole business and come along."

"I thought for a moment."

"Well, no, Ellie, what are your plans?"

"The Rivera—Monte Carlo—Barcelona—Deville and Cannes—all the play-places that are wicked and smart. Why not, Sallie? You aren't happy here?"

"Who's going to chaperone?" I asked.

"Good Lord, Sallie, what's happened to you? You ought to give your friends notice of the change. Chapter one! This is going to be a pleasure trip."

"Oh, I know I would enjoy it but if you had your name dragged around in the mud like mine, you'd hesitate to, before you took a chance of it happening again."

"That's just one of your moods. If you'll come along with me, we'll have dreamy-eyed dukes and Indian Princesses trailing us all over the world. Sallie, they'd all fall for you. Think of moonlight on the Italian lakes! Please come."

"I contemplated the plan."

"Why not? Things were dull enough at home. Ellie painted alluring pictures that in the cold days, would have been the quintessence of joy."

"Your father says you can go, Sallie, I've seen him. Dr. Gray thought you needed a change so if you turn that all."

"How long do you expect to be away?"

"Gladly, until she turned her eyes romantically skyward, "there's no reason for my returning as long as I'm amused."

"Ellie, I hate to see you go alone." "Oh, as far as that's concerned, it's nothing to go chasing around Europe those days without a body guard. Lots of girls do."

"Yes, but there are girls and girls. The scholarly type, for instance, are always safe. You are not. You and I are different. There's some indefinable something about us that interests men. I've gotten to the point where I hate it. Not that I am any raving beauty but—I mean this Ellie, —I wish to goodness I had been born plain."

"Oh, no you don't now, Sallie. You will snap out of this and be the same little bright eyes and the life of the party right on."

"No, you're wrong there, I'm through. No matter what happens, I'll never go back to the old days. You'd be surprised if I told you that I haven't a fog or a cocktail since I saw you last."

"Do you know any more funny jokes?"

"Cross my heart, it's been months and months."

"Well, my dear, if the Rivera does not appeal to your Pantaloon ideas, perhaps there's a nice missionary course."

"Oh, Ellie, you go to the deuce," I laughed.

"You know I'm kidding, Sallie. I only think you're fine. I haven't the strength of character to even."

GAIN WEIGHT

If you are underweight use LEONARD'S ELIXIR FOR THE BLOOD. This tonic increases the appetite, builds up the blood, increases the supply of the much needed red cells. It provides nourishment that makes the blood rich and pure and thus enables the blood to impart this new found strength to the body. It also acts gently on the liver and kidneys.

Make yourself robust and healthy. Get out the yellow spots, erase the lines caused by lack of flesh. Start with LEONARD'S ELIXIR FOR THE BLOOD at once. Insist on LEONARD'S in the yellow package. At all druggists.

WANT to change, I'd go flitting through life until I've completely beaten my wings out against the flame. In the end, no one will want me and I'll look like a hag. But let me tell you this thing," she paused dramatically. "I suddenly swear I will never come back like they do in the movies, with a skinny, stricken feature to my hat and a cough."

That was Ellie. Always she saw the collection and went jauntily on, defiant and unafraid. "All right, Sallie," she continued. "I'd rather have you with me than any one in the world, and we'd have a glorious time—I promise you that, but I don't want any unbecoming person cramping my style, so if you decide not to go along, I'm off by myself. Good night."

MANY MAGAZINES ARE TO FEATURE FLORIDA

Half a dozen or more magazines are going to get out special editions on Florida in October and November, according to information received by the Believers in Jacksonville.

The outstanding magazines among this number, perhaps, is the Review of Reviews, Frank Parker Stockbridge whose article earlier in the year attracted such widespread attention, is going to write the leading articles. Other articles will deal with particular sections of the state.

Bryan Black, Florida newspaperman, is representing the magazine in the assembly of advertising matter and in the accumulation of facts about the state.

Motor Magazines

The American Motorist, official publication of affiliated automobile clubs throughout the country, is going to devote its November issue to Florida. Representatives of this magazine are in the state at the present time gathering material for their articles.

Motor Life, official publication of the Blue Book Association also is devoting its November issue to Florida. In its November issue, illustrations and reading matter have been furnished by the publicity department of the Believers organization. Mayor Ahearn also has written a story on Jacksonville, which will be featured. This article will deal with the recreational attractions of Jacksonville and will be accompanied by illustrations.

Ask for Pictures

Journeys Illustrated also is getting out a Florida issue and has asked the publicity department of the Believers to furnish color editorial matter and pictures.

World Traveler Magazine also has announced that it is going to feature Florida in its November, December, January and February issues and has asked the publicity department of the Believers to furnish editorial matter and pictures.

Practically every automobile club publication in the country is going to carry Florida articles in the fall and winter. It is stated, and it is expected, a record-breaking response to Florida will result from this publicity.

During the last sixty days articles on Florida have been published by the Saturday Evening Post, the Literary Digest, Review of Reviews, World's Work, according to local records, and by a number of smaller publications. Information is that staff writers of a number of leading magazines are in the state at the present time gathering material for articles which will be published in the fall.

New York Publicity

As a result of a recent visit by representatives of all New York papers, Florida is receiving wide-spread publicity at the present time. A number of these writers were in Florida and interviewed bankers and leading business men.

A significant feature of this publicity is that not a single writer has criticized the state. It is pointed out, and none have predicted that there is going to be a back-swing in development plans.

Present indications, according to those in close contact with publicity activities, is that Florida is going to receive more free publicity within the next six months than any other state in the Union has received in a similar period in its history.

The Believers in Jacksonville national advertising program will begin when this publicity beginning in appearing in these magazines. It is pointed out, and it is believed this fact will contribute in a large measure to the success of the program. The first advertisement will appear in the issue of the Saturday Evening Post which goes on sale September 10.

Joe Mitchell Chapple, editor and owner of The National Magazine and nationally known writer, came to Florida with Mrs. Chapple to celebrate his birthday and to gather material for a series of articles on Florida which he will write for a syndicate of newspapers.

Mr. Chapple declared that the development of Florida is one of the great topics of the day over all the country. People everywhere are talking Florida and thousands are preparing to follow those who have already come, seen and been conquered he said.

"Never in the history of any country," Mr. Chapple declared, has there been anything to equal the present rush to and development of Florida."

Mr. Chapple has an enviable reputation both as a traveler and a lecturer. —Jacksonville Times-Union.

FORD TRUCKS ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

Sales reports received by the Ford Motor Company from branches throughout the country during the past week show a phenomenal demand for trucks and tractors with deliveries exceeding those of the last year.

Figures from these reports, which cover the first twenty days of July and which were just given out, give the sale of Ford one-ton trucks as totaling 12,168 an increase of 30 per cent over the same number of days in July last year.

While the greater portion of the truck sales cover industrial installations, there is a noticeable increase in deliveries in rural sections where harvesting of crops is under way or just beginning. Another feature indicating that farmers are coming into the buying market in increasing numbers, comes in the reports of Fordson Tractor sales. Retail deliveries of Fordsons during the first twenty days of July numbered 3,094, an increase of 41 per cent over the same number of days in July a year ago.

In view of these reports and the business conditions they indicate sales during the remaining weeks of the summer will continue, it is anticipated on a higher level than ordinarily expected for this season of the year.

All touring records from Los Angeles to Yellowstone Park were broken, park officials have just announced, when James Kane of Los Angeles and C. S. Powell of San Diego, completed a remarkable run of 2,292 miles, via Portland, Oregon, in four days and a half, or 30 hours and 42 minutes, running their new Lincoln touring car.

Kane and Powell put the Lincoln 280 miles the first day, between Los Angeles and Sacramento, despite the fact that the machine was "brand new" and had not been driven a mile since its unloading from the factory. The second day the party reached Roseburg, Ore., after driving 467 miles and the next noon, Portland, going 225 miles during the morning hours. After half a day and night with friends in Portland, Kane, on the following day drove from Portland to Twin Falls, Idaho, a distance of 601 miles. The last day of the trip covered ed 433 miles, the men reaching Mammoth Hot Springs at the north end of the Yellowstone loop, having entered the west entrance of the park earlier in the day. Kane and Powell were welcomed in Mammoth Hot Springs by Postmaster M. Albright of the National Park Service who, congratulated them on the record run from California.

According to Kane and Powell gasoline consumed during the trip totaled 264 gallons, at 11-14 miles to the gallon.

ORLANDO TO HAVE ROAD MEET AUG. 13

ORLANDO—No meeting called in Florida in recent months has attracted nearly so much attention as the great advertising and road meeting to be held here on the tenth day of the month, August 13.

This meeting, which has been called by a group of central Florida cities and counties to consider some block advertising for the coming season and work out some plans for better roads in this section of the state, promises to be one of the most interesting meetings ever held in Florida.

Among the Chambers of Commerce that have already notified the committee that they will have delegations present at this meeting are the following: Sumpter County, Lake County, Orange County, Marion County, Putnam County, Sanford, Orlando, Groveland, Wauchula, Palatka, DeLand, Keystone Heights, St. Petersburg, Tarpon, Winter Park, Apopka, Pine Castle, Maitland, Taft, Windermere, Winter Garden, Oakland, Ocoee, Ft. Pierce, Ocala, Cocoa, Palm Bay, Titusville, Green Cove Springs, Bushnell, Clearwater and Bartow.

Everyone in Florida who is interested in some general advertising and work for better road conditions and touring information is urged to be present at this important convention next Thursday.

INDEX SYSTEM TO MARK ROADS FOR MOTORISTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—An index of location and route for American motorists in virtually every section and by-way of the country will be afforded in the marking of the vast system of United States highways, as selected by the joint board of interstate highways.

A network of roads stretching from the Canadian border to the Gulf is embraced in the fifty thousand miles of highways to be designated with uniform markers to tell the motorists exactly that what road he is on and where it will take him.

In carrying its work to this point, the joint board has left to a subcommittee the actual grouping of the selected roads into main arterial highways. In this routing of the highways, the subcommittee is making tentative designations to be submitted to the various states for approval, will carry out the purposes of bringing within the system all of the nation's larger cities, state capitals and resorts, and points of general interest.

The highway markers to be used, in addition to bearing the shield of the United States, the number of the road, the state, and the letters "U. S." will be variously shaped and colored under a code of warning to motorists of approaching curves, railroad crossing and other road conditions.

Out Where the Paving Ends

Ever noticed the cars you meet in the out-of-the-way places, approached by narrow, twisting trails, or rough country roads? They are Fords—nearly every one.

To the Ford car no going is too hard. Every road is open to it—by-ways and highways alike. It is so light it rarely ever "mires in", so powerful that it can pull through where heavy cars must balk.

Take your Ford this summer and explore. There are delights awaiting you away from the beaten path that few know. Leave the crowds and the highways behind you. It costs but little—and it will be a vacation you will never forget.

Ashton Heights is one of St. Cloud's newest suburban subdivisions that offers attractive homesites for new owners. Located on the St. Cloud-Melbourne highway 19, and one-half mile west of the city, the high elevation offers an ideal location.

The sound of the hammer and saw combined with the reports of big real estate transfers in St. Cloud indicates that the growth is more substantial than in some towns where there are big sales but no building. Carpenters are so hard to find that you have to be lucky even when you have a lot of building work. Let the good work go on.

Some residents have responded to the call to clean up their yards and vacant lots, thus adding to the beauty of the city. There is still room for improvement in many sections of the city. We hope that the public spirit that makes good towns will induce those others to make their property attractive by complying with suggestions of city officials and other job spirited organizations in St. Cloud.

St. Cloud has the honor of recording the largest single congregation in any Protestant Church in Osceola county, with the largest financial record also in the membership of the St. Cloud Methodist Episcopal church of which Dr. Iver G. Hyndman is pastor, according to reports made to the various ministers of the county. We also have several other churches of other denominations that show remarkable growth. Indeed, St. Cloud feels like a church-going people.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

The dramatic death, no less than the brilliant life of William Jennings Bryan, seen now in a little deeper perspective, will provide an inspiration to many an American boy and girl, possibly leading them to greater heights of achievement. In the passing of the great orator one nation's shining fact is indelibly stamped on the public conscience, namely, never "I" appreciation of the two characteristics that go to make men great—Sincerity and Courage.

Those who were unflinchingly opposed to the causes and theories advocated by Mr. Bryan, joined equally with those who believed in him in paying tribute to his honesty of purpose and his bravery under fire. Defeated time and again in possibly a dozen political and economic crusades, the man from Nebraska, arose time and again, those critics from the ashes of defeat. One can almost hear in clarion tones, again expressed the thought of Bryan, put so pointedly by the such word as fail.

Since Knighthood was in flower the world has paid homage to courage in battle. It always will, and so long as it does there need be no fear for states or nations that produce leadership of such sterling quality. It was courage that made Napoleon of invincible fame. It was courage that caused the great Old Man of Britain, Gladstone, publicly to state his wish in having become convinced his first political advocacy was wrong. It was courage that gave us the traits of Roosevelt's useful life. Indeed to courage and sincerity we owe our happiness in an independent nation.

Courage presupposes conviction, indomitable will, tenacity of purpose, sincerity of purpose, and above all the open mind, shining ever, unafraid.

LETTERS TO EDITORS

Province of Quebec

To St. Cloud Tribune
After two weeks of a pleasant visit with Mr. Andrew Allen and Mrs. Ash and seeing the sights about town, especially the home of Mr. Gehl, a nephew of Mr. Allen, I took the train for New London and remained there all night in a hotel that needed ventilation but it was the most convenient one for the night. The train which I was to take left in the morning at 4:45 A. M. so I had to rise early to take it. It was not hard to leave a comfy room to do so. There is not much satisfaction in travelling on railroads in seeing the country. In going through the state of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont you see very little of the country. It is like going through a woods. When you come to towns there are openings, otherwise the track is lined with high bushes or woods so view is all hampered in. The country all through the three states seemed to be rough and broken up into hills and valleys, woods and under bushes and hardly any prairie land in view. In order to see the country one would need to travel in an airplane to see far and wide which perhaps will become the fashion in future generations. More can

Editor St. Cloud Tribune:

Last winter we spent our time while in Florida at St. Cloud.

Day by day we liked St. Cloud better and better. Until just before we started for home we decided to purchase property at St. Cloud for our home.

Where we stopped up in St. Cloud they took the St. Cloud paper and while in your city we became attached to your paper.

After coming home we were homesick without your paper so that after returning in a few days, I enclosed one dollar for your paper and forgetting the name I addressed my letter to "St. Cloud paper located south of G. A. R. Hall. After waiting over one month and no papers come I wrote to Chamber of Commerce to ask you why I did not receive your paper. I decided the one dollar would be

A FEW WORDS IN REPLY TO KARL BARTH

By V. M. JEPSON,

St. Cloud, Florida.

(This Space Is Paid for by Mr. Jepson—Ed. Tribune)

The whole story of the divinity of Christ has no better foundation than a dream, and even the dreamer is contradicted by the direct testimony of the mother of Christ.

When Joseph and Mary had been looking for the "boy" (Christ), and found him in the temple, what was her language? "I and God, or I and the Holy Ghost" have been looking for you. Not expected, but I and the father (Joseph) have sought this sorrowing. Had not Mary a right to know who the boy's father was?

In the gospel according to St. Mark, chapter 8, verse 34-35, also chapter 9, verse 1, the following which places him as a false prophet.

34. And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples, also he said unto them, Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

35. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.

36. For what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

37. Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

38. Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

Chapter 9, verse 1 "And he said unto them, verily I say unto you, that there be some of them that stand here which shall not taste of death till they have seen the Kingdom of God."

St. Mark also, refers to this again in Chapter 8, verse 24-25. Also Matthew, chapter 14, verse 24-25, chapter 26, verse 25-26. Luke chapter 9, verse 28; chapter 21, verse 22-24.

The promise of Christ's return to the earth during the generation in which he lived and died recorded in the first three gospels is not mentioned at all in the fourth gospel. The very striking fact is explained when we are told by the critics that this gospel was written in the second century after all Christ's contemporaries were dead. And when his return to the earth was apparent to all the world it was not alluded to in the gospel of John.

I also find in the 22 Psalm the words of David's prayer when in distress: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me, why art thou so far from keeping me and from the words of my singing?"

The last words of Christ on the cross as given in Matthew, Chapter 27, verse 46 were: "And about the sixth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice saying 'Eli, Eli, Lama Sabach, tha'ni?' that is to say, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?'"

AMERICA'S FIRST POSTMAN APPEARED IN NEW YORK ON NEW YEAR'S DAY IN 1672

Who was the first American postman? We have no record of his name, his birthplace or his family; but we do know what sort of a fellow he was. Writes E. Ellison Adams of New York. This information is contained in a letter from Governor Lovelace, his Majesty's representative, in the Province of New York, to his country, Governor Winthrop of Massachusetts. It was penned on a blustery December morning the year 1672, the Governor, goose-quill in hand, sitting at his Queen Anne writing table in his mansion down by the Battery.

It has been arranged that on New Year's Day a heavy horseman, laden with bags of mail, would start out on a long and dangerous ride through the trackless wilderness to Boston, to open the first postal delivery route between New York and that city. The Governor had announced in a proclamation that "starting on that date letters would be conveyed to Hartford, Connecticut, Boston and any others parts in the Road, and be carefully delivered according to the directions by a sworn Messenger and Post, who is purposely employed in that Affair."

The letters might be left with the tavern keeper at the Coffee House, at the head of Centuries Slip on the Battery. This jovial fellow, when he was not handing out bags of merry ale, served as postmaster. He would collect a small fee, affix some curious "Post Pigeon" figures and designs, and assort the letters according to their various destinations. This incoming letters he kept in a rack, to be delivered in person to the silver-backed gentry who came to the tavern to smoke their long-stemmed pipes, exchange bits of gossip and get their mail.

"This person that has undertaken the employment," wrote the Governor in the quaint orthography of the day, "I conceived most proper, fit, and able. He is sworn as to his safety on him, which, together with the advantages of his letters, and other small portable packs, may afford him a handsome livelihood. Hartford is the first stage I have designated him to change his horse, where constantly I expect he should have a fresh one. All the letters outward shall be delivered gratis, with a stipulation of Post Payed on the superscription, and likewise we expect all to us from each first Monday of the month to set out from New York, and to return within the month from Boston or to us."

The mail has always been accorded by the house the letters are designated as, which are all mailed up till their destination, with the mark of the Secretary's Office, whose duty it is on Saturday night to seal them up. Only the letters are in an open bag, to be disposed by the carrier, it shall be so universal a good work that is to afford him directions where and to whom to make his application to upon his arrival at Boston; as likewise to afford him what letters you can establish him in that employment there. It would be much advantageous to our designs if in the interval you discussed with some of the more able woodmen to make out the way for a Post, which, in process of time would be the King's best highway; as likewise passages and accommodations at Rivers, fords or other necessary places."

In those days we had no postage stamps. When in 1672 the Post Office was taken out of the Coffee House and moved up to Richard Nicolls' grocery store, at sixty-two Broadway, the curious "Post Payed" figures and designs were still in vogue. It was not until 1847, three years after the Post Office had been established in a building of its own, that Congress authorized our first issue of stamps. The building was located on Nassau Street. It was none other than the old Middle Dutch Church. Avoid the sacred surroundings of its simple ecclesiastical architecture, clerks took up the sacred task of handling the mail. A towering sky-scraper now occupies the ground upon which the church once reared its slender spire. Engulfed in the relentless tide of progress, it was swept aside to make room for a more capacious edifice.

After the new postal delivery route had been established our first postman became a great favorite among the old and young in the towns and villages through which he passed. They would gather around him, and while he was distributing his letters would ply him with questions. They wanted to know what was going on in New York, in Hartford, in Boston. What was the latest news from England and from France? He was an honored guest for in those days news traveled slowly, while he was look upon as a winged messenger. A return letter from New York and Boston within the month! Sounds, gentlemen, this is progress!

And, besides, he was a hero. His road was beset with many dangers; the natural perils of the great, uncivilized wilderness, and the treacherous red feet whose hunting grounds these white-footed intruders were despised. Many a group of raging Indians and savage bands of war-savages and armed forces of Indians, our big hats and blushing faces could be detected that filled the men with greater resolve and the women with well-earned wonder.

Today you can enter a drug store, walk up to the counter's window and say, "One two-cent stamp, please." You drop your letter in the nearest mail box, and wait it be on the way to, Fifth Street or Washington. It is

HOTEL BODY STOPS WORK ON 27 PLANS UNDER STATE LAW

TALLAHASSEE, Aug. 8.—The State Hotel Commission stopped work on twenty-seven buildings during the month of July, which were being constructed without permits or not in accordance with the State Building Code, says Commissioner Jerry W. Carter.

In the majority of these cases, it was discovered that the buildings were being erected by promoters who were more interested in their profitability than in their stability, Carter says.

This phase of the Hotel Commission was his calling for more time on the part of the commission than any other. All the energy of the department is being used to protect the state against flimsy structures and poorly constructed frames.

Of the number of buildings on which work was stopped, two have to be torn completely away and begun again in accordance with the rules of the commission, while four other frames had to be rebuilt. Under the laws of the state, no structure in any hotel, apartment house, rooming house, or restaurant may be constructed except with approved blueprints.

Blueprints to be addressed to Justice, you can receive an answer the following day. Well, gentlemen, that's good!

Under the law, no building may be begun until plans have been submitted to and approved by the supervising architect of that district. Extensive belief that the future stability of the state depends upon the present stability of its construction, Carter is exercising all his power to ascertain that no building coming under his jurisdiction is pronounced completed until after it has first been made safe.

FLA. AUTO TAGS FOR 1926 TO BE YELLOW, BLACK

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 1.—Florida's auto license tags will have a black background with yellow figures they will retain the outline map of the state and will measure 6 to 10 instead of 7 to 17 inches, as at present.

A contract for such tags has been awarded to the Maryland State Penitentiary at Baltimore which calls for approximately 400,000 tags. They will be delivered at Tallahassee for 7 and 3.4 cent each as compared with 8 and 1.2 cents for 1925. The manufacturers will furnish an envelope for each tag.

The tags will be shipped to Tallahassee in carload lots and distributed from the capitol to the local agencies throughout the state from which they will be supplied to motor vehicle owners. At least one such agency will be established in each county, under provision of the motor vehicle act passed by the 1925 legislature. Two or three such agencies will probably be kept open in the larger cities for the convenience of applicants.

The Controller also has awarded a contract for 10,000 "for hire" containers at a cost of 8 cents each. They will be attractively constructed with blue fronts, 5,000 chauffeur badges also, have been contracted for at 6 and 3.4 cents each.

PROTECTION

ON three consecutive mornings, this appeal had stood in the classified columns of Chicago newspapers: PERSONAL—If anyone knows the whereabouts of James MacLaren, twenty-two years, who left his home in Linton, Illinois, on November 18 on a business trip to Chicago, please communicate by telegram, charges collect, with Robert MacLaren, Linton, Illinois.

He was the son of the Hon. Robert MacLaren, who was well known in central Illinois as a banker and as a member of state boards for local improvements. James, who had been living at home after finishing his course at the state university, had gone into the real estate business in Linton and was doing exceedingly well at it.

Through the Chicago firm of Howell and Company he had procured options upon a suburban tract of land which was rapidly increasing in value, and having formed a syndicate among his friends in Linton, he had collected thirty thousand dollars and gone to Chicago to take up his options. He had wired Howell and Company for an appointment for the afternoon of the same day upon which he left Linton, but he had never come to their office, although he reached Chicago on that day, for he cashed a check for five thousand dollars at a Chicago bank.

The next morning he identified himself and cashed a check for three thousand at another bank; and in the afternoon he cashed a four-thousand-dollar check.

All these drafts endorsed in his handwriting had returned in the ordinary course of business to the Linton bank; and there was little doubt that James MacLaren himself was the person who received the twelve thousand dollars in cash. Yet he never appeared at Howell and Company's office; he never wired or wrote to his family or to any of his associates in the syndicate; he was not to be found at any hotel; he gave no account of himself whatsoever, and by his non-appearance he let his very valuable options go by default.

Because he had had with him eighteen thousand dollars, his friends declared that he had been robbed and made away with; but against this was the proof that he had been free to cash checks at Chicago banks both on the day of his arrival in Chicago and on the next day.

Driving along, Bertram Darand, M. D., pondered over the telephone summons that was taking him to the South side.

Occasionally some one at a distance called him, not at all for his professional skill, but because that some one sought attendance of a doctor born a Darand. Only one call fell out of these categories—the night of the storm, some weeks ago, when Kitty Hewitt, that charming and bewildering girl, mistook his door for another doctor's and summoned Bertram to the bedside of Eddie Pellen. "Eddie the Immune," notorious gunman.

That mistake brought consequences from which Doctor Darand was by no means free indeed, he knew he was now considered by Pellen and his friends as "on their staff." So that when again they should need the secret services of a surgeon, Doctor Darand would be very likely to hear from them.

His call this morning, however, fell quite plainly into the category of a social affair. The man who had sent for him was Harper C. Colton, whom Bertram knew by reputation. Colton was middle-aged and rich—owner of two hotels in the city and much real estate.

Yet whatever had been Colton's idea, Bertram had no choice but to proceed in response to the call. Colton was a rich man, and Bertram needed patients. On the steps of a battered old man, his face obscured by a battered hat pulled low and blue woolen muffler wound around his chin, was sweeping snow. The walk steps had been swept before, apparently, and recently, for scarce a down of powdery snow awaited the broom.

"Is this Mr. Colton's house?"

The bent old man did not reply, but took one hand from his broom and, turning, pressed the button beside the door. He seemed to press it three times, Doctor Darand noticed; perhaps it was merely that age caused his hand to fumble. Yet, a sudden glimpse of the obscured eyes beneath that hat brim gave the doctor rather a start. It seemed to him, oddly enough, that he had seen those eyes before and in no such figure as this.

The curious thought was interrupted by the opening of the door. A young negro, in the white coat of a houseman, stood there.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Colton's expecting you."

Inside the spacious, walnut-paneled hallway the negro took Bertram's hat and ushered him up a flight of stairs, whistling "Barney Google." Then a get a better man. Now, I'll use the telephone, please."

"No, you won't."

"What does this mean?"

"You—can't take him out?"

A light of fear showed in Colton's eyes. With a trembling hand he passed a handkerchief across his brow. "I won't have him taken away from this house!"

Bertram advanced to the couch and gazed at the boy's quiet, pale face. Its aspect puzzled him and, ignoring Colton, he wandered into the next room. David's room had taken the place of anger within him.

The old man who had been sweeping the front steps when Bertram entered the house was sweeping the rear walk now. Very recently he must have cleared the cement, for only the lightest of white down lay in front of his broom. Yet on this flat of snow lay footprints—a single set of footprints, leading away from the house. And Bertram, noticing these almost absent-mindedly, paused suddenly to realize that the old man was busy at obliterating these marks.

Startled, Bertram swung about to Colton, who had followed him: "Who is in the house besides your man and us and—him?"

"Nobody," said Colton hoarsely.

"Who's just been here?"

"Nobody."

Bertram's pulses pounded in his excitement; he whispered to himself, "I've got to keep cool." And in his bewilderment he cast over and over to himself: "What's on here? What in the world was I called here for?"

The subject of discussion between Colton and himself upstairs had been a blind, he now felt sure. But what was back of the blind? Was it that which had happened or something else which had been intended and which Billy Severson's fall downstairs had cut short?

The negro answered the phone. "For you, sir," he said, turning to Colton.

"Tell 'em," jerked out Colton, "not now."

"They're got to talk to you," the negro repeated sharply; and Colton started, then went to the phone. Bertram's tram, listening, heard: "What? He's not here. . . I tell you he's not here. . . I don't care what they told you, I don't know a d—n thing about him." And Colton slammed down the receiver.

Through Doctor Darand's Amusement Came the Soft Whisper of Kitty Hewitt's Words. "I'm Ethel Wing. Do You Hear, Ethel Wing?"

"Look here," said Bertram boldly. "If you imagine that you have a right to prevent proper medical attendance for this young man, you're wrong! More than that, you're committing a definite and dangerous crime!"

He strode forward toward the telephone.

"Fred!" growled Colton.

Obediently the big negro blocked the way; but Bertram was merely making a feint. He dodged swiftly back into the dining room and through the swinging doors into the kitchen and rushed to the rear door, which he found locked and chained. Before he had the bolt back, the negro was after him and he swung up a chair and flung it in front of the negro's legs. With an oath the man sprawled; but was up in a second. Bertram wrenched the door open and blundered out upon a cold porch to be confronted by the old man with the broom.

"Where you going?" the old man demanded.

"Let me by!"

"Oh, no!" The old man wasted no words, but raised his broom and with amazing vigor thrust him backward. Now from the rear the negro seized Bertram's shoulders and flung him roughly into the kitchen. The old man stamped into the house, slammed the door shut, and bolted it.

He pulled off his battered hat and with a jerk unwound the muffler from about his neck and chin; then he straightened and bowed at Doctor Darand with small, pig-like eyes. By his straightening, by removing his hat and muffler, he had peeled off twenty years. All disguise was dropped; and it was Grime who stood there—Grime, the cruel and merciless confederate of Eddie Pellen, "the Immune," the gunman.

"This way," ordered Grime, and, seizing Bertram's arm, led him through the same door into the dining room. A few paces behind, on rubber heels, the negro followed.

In the dining room Grime swung round abruptly. "Look here," he said less harshly, "you saw him, didn't you, when he was all right upstairs?" Grime jerked his head at the still figure on the couch in the next room.

"Yes," admitted Bertram.

"You was there when he was called to the phone and took a tumble. You tended him afterward. All right. Just say that and sign, Doctor Darand; that's all you got to do; and stick to it. Get me now?"

"I get you," admitted Bertram, and clenched his hands, his blood stinging with him; for what Grime wanted was now perfectly plain: it was a certificate to be signed and attested by Bertram Darand, M. D., that he had attended one William Severson, a guest at the home of Harper Colton, when said William Severson required medical aid as the result of an accidental fall downstairs which occurred while Doctor Bertram happened to be in the house. This statement was to be the death certificate when Billy Severson died; and it was intended to prevent police investigation.

Suddenly realizing all this, Doctor Darand backed away from Grime and Colton and stumbled against the big negro.

Clamorously the telephone bell rang again.

"Oh, my God!" gasped Colton.

Grime crossed the room to the instrument and took the receiver, then quickly he turned and beckoned to the negro.

The fellow shuffled forward and picked up the telephone.

"Hello?"

IS JESUS THE CHRIST?

To present refuting evidence to "Why I believe Jesus is the Christ," as the subject matter by my critic, it seems necessary that my "Caption" should be: "Why I do not believe that Jesus is the Christ." I am pleased to say that my critic has truly presented the evidence to sustain his statements, but he has assumed what is the most question upon which he predicates his faith and belief—Faith and belief are not counter-arguments and assume as facts the syllabus of his discourse, which is the fault of all the Biblical supporters.

After receding us to the birth, death and resurrection of Christ, he says: "I believe this because the scriptures prove it, and second because the scriptures the written record of the life of Christ, written by His Apostles after his death. I do not comprehend that there should be any emphatic distinction between the word Jesus and Christ; they are quoted as being the same—origin and object. I have quoted at length his initiative statements for subsequent reference. "Christ while here on earth promised to send to his Apostles the Holy Spirit which bring to their remembrance all things that Jesus said and did. These Apostles after the crucifixion wrote the gospels, or life of Christ. There are some who thru ignorance claim that the books of the New Testament were not written till about the second century A. D.; but as I have said is true ignorance—I am one of those ignorant ones."

I here briefly would like to illustrate one of the methods for fixing the early and true date for the New Testament, this is by means of quotation.

The early church fathers, some who lived immediately after, quote and know the Apostles, and others who give the recognized authors the honor ascribe to them as the writers of the New Testament after, quote and cite the scriptures?

Some of these writers whose writings are of such, are Polycarp, Irenaeus, Origen and many others. I shall begin this line of evidence with Irenaeus who mentions so many of the New Testament books by name that he might also be classed with those who left catalogs. Irenaeus was born in the year 135 A. D. and died about the year 200. He speaks of having seen Polycarp in his early youth. Polycarp was made Bishop in the year 177. So it appears that he was about the same age of Irenaeus. So we may well presume that they commenced quoting from the scriptures during the year from 180 A. D. Making it about 150 years after the death of Christ.

History represents that Irenaeus stated that "The first time, any authentic mention is made of the four gospels was in the year 182 A. D."

Origen another party mentioned that quoted the scriptures, is represented as having accepted them in the year 215, and then only a part of them. So from your own evidence there existed from one to two generations before the Disciples of Christ before the said scriptures were produced for use, so your statements as to having been written immediately after the death of Christ are not supported.

As the scriptures could not have been written by the Disciples; the question is when the Apostles and Acts written, by whom written and from whom were the matters therein contained secured.

You say: (1) You believe—if you only believe—why do you assert that Jesus Christ was conceived of the Holy Spirit, do you mean that, or begotten of the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, etc.; you say you believe this because the scriptures prove it, if so why don't you present the proof.

You cannot extract a fact out of a theory then the testimony of an uncorroborated dream, and Joseph's dream is the only tangible evidence that exists to duty your claimed Christ; and is He was begotten by the Holy Spirit; Matthew says He was produced to save His people from their sins; which history tells us were the Essene Jews of which He was one after birth.

The writer St. Matthew to support the Virgin birth in addition to his dream attempts to give the genealogy of Joseph instead of Mary, to connect Jesus with the house of David. Does that make Him any more a God? Matthew represents Christ as declaring Himself the Son of Man some twenty times, and the last time after He had supplicated with His so claim. He said: Father (God) just before His crucifixion. St. Mark did not learn of the intricate birth of Jesus, but he represented Jesus as saying that He was the Son of Man eight times.

St. Luke says that it was an angel that appeared to Mary, and not to Joseph, and told her that she should bring forth a child to rule over the house of Jacob. He being the same house of Joseph. And he has Jesus say that he is the Son of Man fourteen times, and he also stated that Jesus was supposed to be the Son of Joseph, and further had Mary say that Joseph was His father.

St. John prepared the way for Jesus to, tell the people that He was the Son of man four times. Since the scriptures are claimed to be the common knowledge of the people during Christ's time; that expressed knowledge was that Christ was the veritable son of Joseph, and not the progeny of the Holy Spirit.

What have you repudiated your belief as set forth in your former statements? You refer to Polycarp's association with St. John who recounted to him the life of Jesus, which must have been the writer of the Testament, not the disciple that learned on Jesus' bosom.

The caption of the Books of the Apostles should be taken as prima-facie evidence that no reliability should be credited to their truthfulness.

When the translators and compilers had all the MSS. before them, and then equated by saying Gospel according to St. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. The word according had the same significance to the translators, as the term malaria has for the Dr's ignorance. There is no assurance whatever that a single word was spoken by Jesus, nor acts performed by Him. You must take their unsupported word for all that is presented, accept it or condemn it as your reason impels. In proof that Christ lived, you quote the Historian Josephus. I will also refer to your quotation as found in Vol. 2, page 100 Historians History of the World Title Rise of Christianity.

"The give or six lines which we find in Josephus appear to be an interpolation. The excerpt from Josephus is as follows: "Now there was about this time Jesus, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man, for he was a doer of wonderful works a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews, and many of the Gentiles. He was (the) Christ."

As has just been said, this paragraph is probably an interpolation of a copyist of a much later period. It would seem, then, that no contemporary record, no mention even, of the life of Jesus has been preserved to us. This fact is one of the most striking paradoxes in all history. As a general rule, it may be taken for granted that the great names in history are achieved during the life of their bearers! Without that statement as the Historian says, not a single reference is to be found among the writings or any of the contemporary Historians referring to the existence of Jesus Christ. And the recognized interpolation of the last 12 verses of Mark's last chapter, is another in famous fraud to establish Christianity.

It appears that the ancient Christians deemed it necessary to manufacture history to support their claim of the existence of Christ; so they interpolated into Josephus' History long after his death the above paragraph. It is believed to have been done by Eusebius, the most active agent of Christianity; the Father of church history. Who says of himself, "I have related whatever might redound to the glory, and I have expressed all that would tend to the disgrace of our religion."

In his Eccl. work, he devotes one whole chapter to the discussion of how far, falsehoods ought to be used as a medicine for the benefit of those who resist to do so. Prof. Mosheim, one of the most able Ecclesiastical writers of modern times says, with respect to Eusebius and others, "The first of their maxims was, that it was an act of virtue to deceive and lie, when that means the interested of the church might be promoted."

The Epistle of Polycarp to the Philipians written at about the same time that he was made Bishop was discarded and that of Paul included. It was not deemed of Divine origin as well as the writing of the youthful life of Christ. The compilers instinctively knew what was of Divine origin, at least what would build up the fabric of their Christianity.

Bishop Irenaeus declares upon the authority of the martyr Polycarp, who claimed he got it from St. John and all the Elders of Asia, that Jesus Christ was not crucified, but lived to be about fifty years old. To establish a resurrection of Jesus Christ upon the contradictory statements of the four Apostles as to His resurrection is as unwarrantable as to claim that 2 and 2 are 5.

When we refer to the last chapter of St. John, we find support as to this statement of Polycarp, 20th verse. "Then Peter turning about seeth the Disciple whom Jesus loved, following which also leaned on His breast at supper; and said Lord which is he that betrayeth thee?—Cath says, "This is the Disciple which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things; and we know that his testimony is true; and there are many other things which Jesus did, the which, if they could be written every one I suppose, that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written. Amen. This St. John represents that he was getting the last statements concerning Christ, which did not contain any knowledge of the Death and Resurrection; but that conversation must have some 150 years after the death of Christ.

Christianity was practically dormant until the Nice Council, called by Constantine in 325 A. D.; which seemed necessary to settle the disputes between the factions of Arius and Alexander. Representatives were called from Europe, Asia and Africa, all being under the Roman Empire, ruled by Constantine. Arius and his supporters, claimed that the Son of God is merely a creature, or created being, and that there was a time when he had no existence. They supporting the claim of Matthews and Luke.

While the Alexander faction claimed that Christ was co-existent with God. The result of the Council was the adoption of the Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost; adopting St. John's expressed conception. Thus Constantine was instrumental in establishing the Catholic Creed; and solemnly confirmed it, and threatened all as would not subscribe to it with exile; and raised all the decrees of the Assembly to the position of laws of the Empire, and declared them to be Divinely inspired, and to be most faithfully observed, including the Sabbath.

Constantine was one of the most bloody, treacherous and unscrupulous wretches that ever disgraced history. He cut the throat of his nephew, suffocated his wife in a bath of boiling water and beheaded his son. But later was taken into the Church in full fellowship. If Christ were the only person represented as having been born of a Virgin, crucified, resurrected and taken to Heaven, much latitude might be indulged in to accept him as a Messiah. But since He is the last of some fifteen others, that had been acclaimed and worshipped as their Messiah, by the many different nationalities it is a matter requiring much deliberation. And since He may be classed with one practically a counterpart advanced from India some 1200 years ago called Krishnan, similar in name, represented to have been born on the 25th of December from a Virgin named Mariat, also similar in name, in a grotto, performed the same represented miracles, crucified, buried, and in three days resurrected and went up to Heaven—it is proper to search history for true information.

History seems to represent Christ as a symbolical wish to represent a being of a higher life. One hundred and fifty years or more before Christ's day, there existed a Jewish sect of secret society called Essenes, their Creed being voluntary poverty, and fragments of history justify the conclusion that they later appeared under the name of Christians. Mr. Gibson the historian says, "Whether, indeed, the first of the sect (the Essenes) took the name of Christian when the appellation of Christianity as yet been nowhere announced, it is by no means necessary to discuss (Book 11 Chapter 1) "Again in a note to chapter 15 he says "It is probable that the Therapeutae (Essenes), changed their name to Christians as some writers affirm, and adopted some new articles of faith." The definition of a Therapeut, is a healer or medicine man, which would well left Christ.

Eusebius states, "These ancient Therapeutae (Essenes) were Christians, and their ancient writings were our Gospels." (Eccl. III. P. 63)

Robert Taylor declares, "The clear-ed Barnabe has shown that the Essenes were really Christians, centuries before Christ, and that they were actually in possession of these very writings which are now called Gospels and Epistles" (p. 81) And they we have the declaration of the Author of "Christ the Spirit" (p. 110) That "The Christians were the Essenes of the time of Eusebius under a changed name; that name having been made at Antioch, where the Disciples were first called Christians."

Eusebius further states, "It is highly probable that their (The Essenes) ancient commentaries which Philo says the Essenes have, are the very Gospels and writings of the Apostles. In Eusebius' statements were required to bolster up the scriptures of the New Testament, we would receive them with much latitude, but since they are advance, much force should be given them."

Mr. Wellington states that Jesus and John belonged literally to the society of the Essenes.

Mr. Hatfield, a writer, was awarded a prize in 1793 by the Theological Faculty of Cologne for an essay, in which the position was ably argued that St. Matthew, Mark, Luke and John were not the Authors of the Books bearing their names, but were mere copyists." (Christianity before Christ, p. 259)

The matter, herein presented, are facts as disclosed in History to be weighed against belief; which will tip the scale?

If I were the God with the power accorded, I would destroy with lightning bolts every individual that declared that I wrote such vile and apocryphal matter as we find in the Scriptures, it is too insulting for the lowest degenerate being. I would not be so blasphemed by my Children.

STOP THAT BACKACHE

Many St. Cloud Folks Have Found The Way.

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good times around you? Then take something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this St. Cloud resident says:

Passchal Strode, retired farmer, Massachusetts Ave., says: "When I went to lie down, my back ached like toothache. I was out of sorts and in misery. I had to get up during the night to pass the kidney secretions. At times everything seemed to be going around in circles. Doan's Pills from Edwards' Drug Store drove the pains from my back and my kidneys became normal."

Each proposal shall be presented in a sealed envelope endorsed on the outside with the title of the work and the name of the bidder. Complete plans and pamphlet documents are procurable from the Main Engineering Company by depositing Thirty ($30.00) Dollars. Complete plans are procurable from said Company by depositing Fifteen ($15.00) Dollars. Complete pamphlet documents are procurable from said Company by depositing Fifteen ($15.00) Dollars. The successful bidder will be required to enter into contract and bond with the said City for the performance of said work satisfactory to the said City Commission. Said bond to be given in an amount equal to the total amount of the bid made and accepted.

Bids must be made on blank forms which will be furnished by the City. All information for which blank forms are to be provided should be furnished.

Such information to be augmented, where practicable, by full descriptions of proposed work and materials, by appropriate cuts, detail plans, specifications, etc. Unauthorized alterations, interlineations, conditions, limitations, provisions, or commissions, on any proposal may render it informal and be cause for its rejection.

Proposals unnecessarily incomplete or unbalanced may be rejected without consideration.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive any informality in the bids received, to accept any bid deemed most favorable to the City, and to modify the quantity and the quality of any class or portion of the contemplated work as hereinafter provided.
